House Intelligence Chairman Statement on Attacks in Amman

WASHINGTON, D.C. – U.S. Rep. Pete Hoekstra, R-Mich., Chairman of the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, issued the following statement after a series of bomb blasts in Amman, Jordan:

“Once again we are reminded that the world is in a global war against terrorism. It is a war in which the terrorists seemingly know no bounds and place no value on human life.

“Our thoughts and prayers are with those who were killed or injured in today’s attacks, their families and the Jordanian people. These were innocent civilians, and we hurt for their loss.

“Today’s attack shows that the threat posed by terrorism is real and ongoing. We must maintain our vigilance and dedication in this fight.”
